TEXTBOOK: The Wadsworth Anthology of Drama, Brief Sixth Edition

ATTENDANCE: Great grades happen when you come to class, do the work, and apply good scholarship to your efforts. Think of this class as you do your job. If you don’t go to work – you don’t get paid. If you don’t come to class – you won’t get a good grade.

COMMUNICATION: I don’t answer emails after 7:00 pm or before class. If it’s an emergency, the timing of your email will be the important factor. Let’s set up an appointment if you want to talk or are concerned about your grade. No miracles available at the “11th hour”.

CLASS ETIQUETTE: Please arrive on time and let me know if you must leave early.
No cell phone usage during class. No computers allowed.
All work must be turned in on time. NO MAKE-UP PAPERS OR EXAMS.

DISHONESTY: Dishonesty will not be tolerated. This includes cheating on exams or plagiarizing. (Disciplinary action WILL be taken. See Student Handbook)

THE WORK

• Reading: We will read and analyze six or maybe seven plays, information about the history of theater and learn about how the process of theatre comes to life. Your “Weekly Focus” sheet has all the semester’s assignments.

• Writing: You will watch one video for a short Observation Paper, complete one Poster Design Creative Project by Thanksgiving, and write two Performance Reviews covering the BSU productions of Champagne Breakfast and Dancing at Lughnasa. Your “Weekly Focus” sheet has the assignment dates and detailed information will be given to you as we progress through the semester.

• Testing: There are three exams which will be taken in class. Each will cover classroom lecture information, readings, plays, and videos. Test study sheets will be provided.

• Ex Credit: Up to 10 points per submission can be earned by attending approved productions at local theatre companies and submitting a one-page, single-spaced, Aesthetic Experience Report for each production. The assignment requirements and a list of approved theaters can be found on Blackboard. There is a limit of three submissions. GO EARLY!
